

San Diego State University, Graduate School of Public Health

Assistant/ Associate/ Full Professor of Global Health. Candidates for this open rank, tenure-track position should possess an earned doctoral or medical degree; have a strong record of academic research; have a demonstrated capacity to secure external funding; have a track-record of peer-reviewed publications and interdisciplinary collaboration; and have research and teaching experience related to global health. Areas of concentration may include but are not limited to: global health policy and planning, health economics, environmental health, population studies, reproductive health, global maternal and child health, social epidemiology, behavioral science, human rights, and health care delivery. The individual hired will lead the new joint PhD program in Public Health, concentration Global Health, between the San Diego State University Graduate School of Public Health and the University of California, San Diego School of Medicine. Apply by sending a letter of application, curriculum vitae, and the names, addresses, phone/FAX numbers, and email of at least five references. References will only be contacted with permission of the candidate. Application review will begin November 15, 2007 and continue until the position is filled. Applications will not be accepted after February 1, 2008. Send all communications to: Global Health Search Committee, Graduate School of Public Health, San Diego State University, 5500 Campanile Drive, San Diego, CA 92182-4162. SDSU is a Title IX employer and does not discriminate against individuals on the basis of race, religion, national origin, sexual orientation, gender, marital status, age, disability, or veteran status, including veterans of the Vietnam era. Additional information is available at <http://publichealth.sdsu.edu>.